INTENA says hello! (2/2010)

We say hello from INTENA to our faithful friends. Today we would like to share our great joy with you. We were finally able to start building. The Lord is faithful and does not let his people down. Some greater amounts of money have come in within the last three months. To your right you can see how much the “building thermometer” has gone up. Thank you so much to all supporters. Apart from a lot of others, we would like to mention “Hilfe für Brüder International” who gave us the promise to send €46,000 as well as several friends from Germany and the U.S.A. who donated €1,000 each. We appreciate any donation and say thanks to all of you who contributed to the rise of the thermometer.

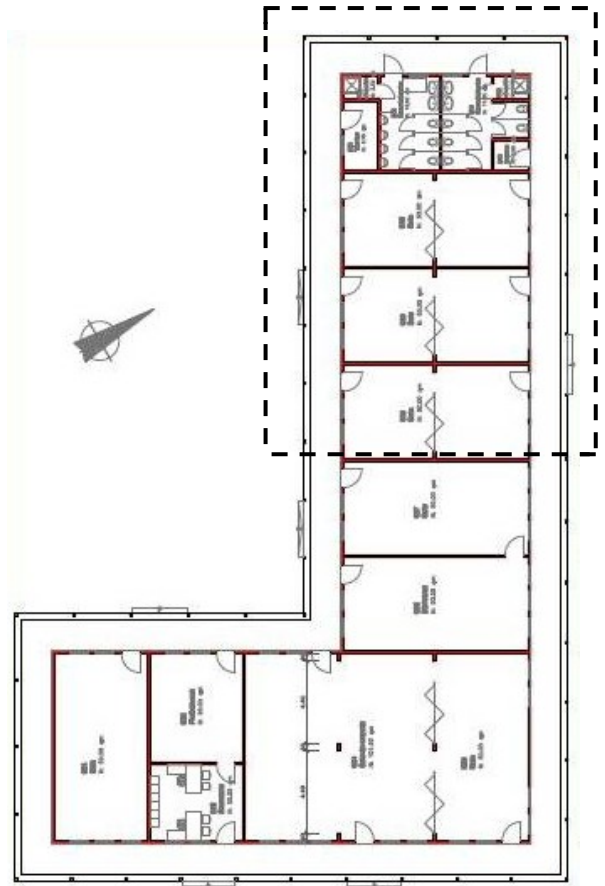

There is another reason to be grateful. All the big trees on our site were cut down without any accidents or complications. A special event was the felling of the big tree you can see on the pictures. Our Scandinavian friend BG Cider of Wycliff really did a great job. In the picture you can see him with his son, who spent his vacation here. He was proud to help his father. He will have a lot to talk about when he is back in school.

What do our building plans look like? You can see the delivery of the first building material on September 9, 2010 in the next picture. The initial construction phase is marked by a dashed line. If this project could be finished within the next year, we could already have the lessons in the classrooms built in that phase. We also hope that the library, a reading room, rooms for administration and teachers as well as the assembly hall (which is at the same time a room for events like the yearly graduation) can be built.

Two months ago, four students finished their theological training successfully. It was very special to us that the first woman graduated together with her husband. The picture shows the four graduates with their teachers. On August 21, another semester at INTENA started with an opening service. Nine new students are enrolled and six already started with their studies. All of them have been engaged in their churches for a while and feel the necessity to become strengthened for their tasks.

On September 18, the official ground-breaking ceremony and a worship service for building the institute will take place. Leaders of different Christian denominations as well as friends of INTENA are invited to join us on that day.

Let me finish by saying thanks to you for all your support, your prayers and donations. May the Lord Jesus Christ bless you for it.

On behalf of the institute's management
